SAD SIGHT AT ST. KEVERNE. ST. KEVERNE, October 15 .- In the lower part of the church here lie fifteen bodies, among them those of four women and one 12-year-old girl. The bodies are laid out reverently. The faces of the victims present a sad sight, showing how rudely the waves and rocks played with their features.

The whole village and neighborhood are allve with excitement, and knots of men linger about, talking with the rescued members of the crew.

It is exceedingly difficult to trace the events of the disaster, but so far as can be ascertained, it seems that the weather was not thick, but that a strong southeast wind was blowing, and that there was a heavy ground-swell on, and a strong cur-

THIRTY-THREE OF CREW SAVED. LONDON, October 15 .- The officers and crew of the Mohegan numbered ninety six, and of these thirty-three are known have been saved.

The body of R. A. Baxter, one of the passengers, has been recovered, The officers of the steamship company were busy until midnight, answering in-quiries. They still hope that the steamer's boats may have succeeded in saving others.

HARROWING SCENES AT OFFICES Harrowing scenes were witnessed to-day at the London office of the Atlantic Transport Company, to which the wreck-ed steamer Monegan belonged. A num-ber of women fainted there when the account of the calamity became known, and there was a constant stream of telegraph boys running to and from the office, seeking for information or taking messages to anxious inquirers. THE MOHEGAN ILL-STARRED,

The Mohegan, it is now said, has been an ill-fated vessel from the start. It is an ill-fated vessel from the start. It is added that she was only bought by the Transport company when their own boats had been sold to the United States Gov-ernment during the war. She was for-merly the Cleopatra, of the Wilson and Furness-Leyland Line, and was bought direct from the Hull ship-yard. She never ran for the Furness Line, and only made ran for the Furness Line, and only made one yoyage and home. RECENTLY UNDER REPAIR.

For the past two weeks the steamer has been in dock, undergoing repairs, but the managers say she was in perfect condition when she left port on this, her first voyage under her new name. It is asserted, however, that in a twenty-fournour trial last week her performances were very unsatisfactory, and the crew did not wish to go on her, on account the previous defect in her engines. It is surmised here that her engines broke down, and that the vessel, in the rough stormy weather and fog, and many

The Lizard is a bold headland of England, on the coast of Cornwall, the most southern point of Great Britain. It is twenty-three miles east-southeast of Land's End. It has two light-houses, with ights, elevated 200 feet above the sea. The name Lizard is given to the whole poninsula south of a ine drawn from Gweek, at the head of Helford river, to Loce Pool. The peninsula is an elevated plateau descending in cliffs to the sea. The coast, rugged and severe in aspect, and heavy gale which prevailed, wrecks occur there each winter, despite numerous light-houses erected to warn shipping.

CORONER'S INQUEST. VIRDEN, ILL., October 15.—The Coroner's jury held two sessions to-day at the stockade, where they examined several witnesses. They were all guards, who are under nominal arrest by the militia sworn out yesterday, charging them with conspiracy to murder, in connection with Wednesday's fight. The testimony was practically the same as that given by their companions Friday. The general idea conveyed was that the men who were employed to protect the property of the Chicago-Virden Coal Company not only did not fire the shots themselves, but did not have time to see whether their comrades did. This applies to the guards stationed in the grounds. The coal company has severa including Manager Lukens, and it will take one or more days to conclude.
